

Statement developments Middle East

We have taken note of the recent developments in the Middle East and the increasing instability in the region. We are closely monitoring the situation on an ongoing basis.

The ingredients used in our products are not sourced from the affected countries in the Middle East. Based on current insights, these developments therefore have no direct impact on the origin or availability of our products.

At present, we have sufficient inventory and do not anticipate any disruptions to the supply of our products in the coming weeks. However, the continued tensions in the region may have an impact on global logistics flows.

We remain in close contact with our suppliers and logistics partners. Where necessary, we are taking appropriate measures to safeguard the continuity of our deliveries as much as possible. If any relevant changes occur that may affect our deliveries, we will inform you in a timely manner.

Should you have any questions, please contact your regular Sonneveld representative.
